Chris Axelson uses traditional smithing skills to create functional and decorative works in metal. He offers forge and foundry work, architectural installations and fine furnishings in iron, bronze, copper and stainless steel.

His work runs the gamut from historic architectural periods to the most contemporary in design. He works with designer firms and commissions based on clients' specifications as well as antique restorations.

Axelson's work has received Gold Medal honors with the National Ornamental Metals Association, including the 1985 Award for Excellence in Design and Craftsmanship.

Exhibitions include national juried shows, invitationals and galleries. He works with private and corporate commissions.
